Marrakech has a new crop of hotels to add to the already considerable choice. Designed by leading Algerian architect Imaad Rahmouni, the contemporary Sirayane opened late last year with 24 rooms, four suites and palm-tree lined gardens. New for this year are Moroccan cooking master classes. Doubles from €150 B&B, sirayane.com

Four Seasons Hotel Marrakech opened a 141-room outpost with 40 acres of Moorish gardens, two swimming pools and a spa with 17 treatment rooms. Doubles from £341 room only, fourseasons.com

The 56-room Selman will open early next year with its USP, a private collection of Arabian horses available for hire. The Jacques Garcia-designed palace will offer five private riads, two restaurants and a spa with 15 treatment rooms, indoor and outdoor pools, a hammam, Turkish bath and gym. Doubles from £310 B&B, glahotels.com
